

STATE POLICY SYMPOSIUM

SATURDAY, MARCH 5, 2016
WASHINGTON D.C.

2016 SYMPOSIUM SESSIONS

11:00 am Remarks – Jeremy Anderson, President, Education Commission of the States

Believing that informed policymakers create better education policy, Education Commission of the States provides state leaders with unbiased policy research and reporting, targeted technical support and the opportunity to learn from peers in other states. We do this both by looking back to learn from prior state experiences, and by looking forward for new and innovative ways for states to meet their goals. Established in 1995 and now a policy center within the Education Commission of the States, the Arts Education Partnership (AEP) is dedicated to securing a high-quality arts education for every young person in America. AEP serves partner organizations by providing priority access to research and creating opportunities for communication and collaboration between arts disciplines and across sectors on key education issues. To learn more, visit the Arts Education Partnership's website or the Education Commission of the States' website.

SPEAKERS

Jeremy Anderson

President

Education Commission of the States

Jeremy Anderson is the President of the Education Commission of the States. Jeremy has a strong public service record working with officials in Washington, D.C., with many governors and legislators in states and with education policy organizations around the country. Jeremy was raised by two amazing teachers and his wife is an early learning teacher. Jeremy currently serves on the Academy of Education Arts and Sciences Board of Governors. Jeremy is the eighth president of Education Commission of the States since its establishment in 1965. Along with running often and traveling the country for the Education Commission of the States, Jeremy and his wife Cherise have three children that keep them quite busy and entertained.

