Arts & Business Spotlight: Time Equities Partners with Artists in Construction of Lower Manhattan Skyscraper

Where can artists, construction workers, and developers work simultaneously?

Time Equities, Inc. \(TEI\), an international real estate firm, has recently announced an artist-in-residency program in conjunction with the construction of a new residential tower, 50 West. The 64-story building is currently under construction in Lower Manhattan, where developers and construction workers are joined by artists Noa Charuvi, Hugo Bastidas, and Paul Anthony Smith. The artists have been commissioned by TEI, through their program Art-in-Buildings to create paintings that document the construction process in exchange for an honorarium and studio space located near the construction site.

Arts & Business Council of New York Arts Volunteer Fair

Calling all NYC arts organizations! Are you looking for volunteers? Do you have events or projects that could use an extra hand? Have you thought about engaging the NYC business community in your work?

ABC/NY will be showcasing arts organizations who have specific volunteer opportunities available in the arts. We encourage interested organizations to present projects that can creatively engage business volunteers as well as those that fulfill their own organizational needs. These can take the form of traditional non skills-based, skills-based, or team building projects – maybe you have all three!

The goal of the fair is for business professionals to walk away from the evening more engaged in the arts by signing up for one of your projects! Volunteer opportunities should be prepared and thoroughly detailed, making it easy for potential volunteers to understand the specific needs and where they can apply their skills.

Tuesday, November 18th, 2014

6:00 p.m. – 9:00 p.m.

If you are interested in showcasing your organization and its volunteer opportunities, please contact Caleb Way, Arts & Business Council of New York Program Coordinator, cway@artsandbusiness-ny.org, for more information. There will be limited tabling space available and preference will be given to the organizations with projects that best suit the business audience.
